In case with CD\DVD recovery media you must first create the ISO image and save it to your computer. (Windows 7 and later versions of Windows builds have ADK\WAIK as a component.) The Linux/DOS recovery environment can be used to boot your computer on Linux or PTS DOS to access your hard drive for maintenance or recovery purposes. Recovery Media Builder provides the creation of the following recovery media platforms: 1) Microsoft Windows PE (Pre-installation Environment) WinPE recovery environment can be a real alternative to the Linux/DOS recovery environment. It can be used to boot a computer that does not have an operating system, to partition and format hard drives, to copy disk images, and to start Windows configuration from a shared network. Using Recovery media Builder can prepare a 64-bit (EFI) or 32-bit (BIOS) USB flash drive based on Linux. Then browse for the ISO image in the directory, right-click on the created ISO file and select “Burn to Disk Image”. RMB: ADK/WAIK, RMB: Linux, RMB: errors RMB, RMB: WinPE Tags: backup, copy, general, howto, migration, rcd, windows, WinPE Did this article help? Ass? Paragon Boot Media Builderâ¢ is a wizard that helps you prepare a WinPE-based boot environment on a CD/DVD/BD disc. Note that you need a real Windows installation to be able to download this tool. Proceeding to get 2) Linux recovery media platform. 2. 6) Click “Next” to complete the creation in the Boot Media Builder. 5) To load drivers for additional hardware support, use the Add button. If you prepare media with free product, as described below, you will only be able to access free version tools. In this case, only the basic files and drivers will be loaded (like the controllers) Hard disk, a monitor controller and a keyboard controller). Record on CD \ DVD. Creation process of USB Flash recovery means is the same as for the WinPE platform, but keep in mind that using Linux first you must find out if your system is 32 or 64 bits.
